

Inigo Update

September 2005

Banbury's Fine Lady on a White Horse

Princess Anne unveiling the statue

Residents of Banbury, Oxfordshire, voted for the artwork after the town was left a £25,000 legacy, which later sparked a £170,000 appeal. The elegant horsewoman was designed by an artists collective called Artcycle and has the words to the famous nursery rhyme engraved on the plinth.

“Raising funds for the statue has brought local businesses and the community together” said Toni Wallis, Mecia House’s Centre Manager.

In April 2005 the Princess Royal, HRH Princess Anne, unveiled a large bronze statue illustrating the Fine Lady upon a White Horse of the nursery rhyme. The statue is located near Mercia House, Inigo’s Banbury centre which overlooks Banbury Cross.

Residents of Banbury, Oxfordshire, voted for the artwork after the town was left a £25,000